“ This photo was taken a few weeks after you and the kids came to the USA. It was a dream come true for you and it was a blessing for me having my best friend so near again. We've been through the toughest trials together and we held each other up but today my puppet you broke my heart and left me alone. I will treasure every memory that we made together and I hurt cos I won't see you again but I know that you are in a better place. Fly high my sweet angel and look down upon us as we stop to smell the roses❤️🌹
