“ Shanna was one of THE funniest people I knew! She always made me laugh with her quick wit and just her love of humor. She was always smiling, always loving, and so accepting! What a jewel, and a treasured friend! I really loved this lady! How blessed I was to have known her and spent time some good times with her! I will miss her SO much! God bless her soul.

“ I never had a sister — only two older brothers who were often hard on me. So when Shanna came into my life, it felt like God finally gave me the sister my heart had always longed for. She wasn't just my sister-in-law. She became my big sister, my best friend, my safe place.

She taught me about boys, about makeup, about growing up — but more than that, she taught me what it felt like to be loved and understood by another woman. She filled a space in my life that had always been empty. With her, I felt special. I felt seen. I felt like I mattered.

She was such a beautiful soul. Even after she and my brother divorced, she never divorced our family. She never divorced me. She stayed. She showed up. She loved us anyway. That's the kind of heart she had — loyal, forgiving, and full of grace.

I carry so much regret that I wasn't there more toward the end. I replay it in my mind, wishing I had done more, called more, shown up more. I hate that I can't go back. I hate that I can't fix it. I miss her in the quiet moments the most — when I want to call her, laugh with her, ask her advice like I used to.

I miss her every single day. My heart aches for her.
