“ Mama,

I miss you to call everyday and share our struggle. I miss hearing those sweet powerful prayers over me. I can't help but be jealous of others who still have their Mama. I look forward to seeing you again. I'll meet you on that shore and enter that golden house where death can't enter anymore. I look forward to exploring all the rooms in that mansion. Till then I will work my way though this prophetic labyrinth finishing what we came here to do. I love you and I will be there to get you as soon as I can for the journey. Till then enjoy some rejuvenation and pray for us fervently.

Love,
Zac
